Dear Mr. David Forte,

I am nearing retirement. I have worked very hard to save for retirement. But when a politician takes it upon themselves to determine "what is best for the citizens" while ignoring the courts and the citizens, it's time for that person to be removed from office. This is a democracy, not an authoritative regime. Using credit scores is proven to show lower risk individuals. You can't change statistics or math for a social agenda. Facts are facts. People of color and poor people aren't discriminated against when credit scores are used. Those with good credit are simply rewarded. How many of those who were supposed to be helped by this policy have seen their rates lowered? There is a very high probability that their rates went up as well. So in the end, what is the point of this policy? It helped no one; although the insurance companies are making a lot more money. Please look out for us responsible people trying to save money for retirement.

Sincerely,
Shane Triem
